To the Organizers, Participants and Attendees of Inventors College Workshop:

In November of 2007 I had the distinct pleasure of attending the Inventors College Workshop in Waterloo. The high quality products displayed there was truly remarkable. Please accept my sincerest regrets for not being able to attend this event.

I am very impressed with the Inventors College mission to motivate and show participants how to be innovative thinkers and professional inventors. Participants are taught the steps in inventing something new and how to present themselves and their inventions to potential investors and the world market place in a professional manner. Inventors College Workshops develop and promote individual creativity, entrepreneurship, and positive risk-taking through inventing. Inventors College gives participants real-world skills and knowledge.

Congratulations to Inventors College for conducting world-class educational workshops. Congratulations to the Inventors College participants. Have confidence in the knowledge you've gained and pride in the product you've created.

I know some day soon I'll meet a wealthy entrepreneur who'll say, "I learned to invent and market my product at an Inventors College Workshop!"

Sincerely,
